

Clarretta Freeman-Alston

April 25, 1953 - November 25, 2016

Clarretta Freeman was born in Asheboro, North Carolina to the late Fred and Ina Mae Freeman.

Clarretta was the middle child of 5, and even though she wasn't the oldest or the youngest she was the protector of us all. She loved her family very much.

Her religious foundation was at the Mt. Moriah Baptist Church. She was a member of the Junior Choir and the Junior Usher Board. She also, continued her work at the church as she assisted with the Drug Counseling Program and Feeding the Homeless Program.

She was educated through the Passaic School District, and excelled in Art. Clarretta also, enjoyed cosmetology.

Clarretta was formerly married to Gregory Alston and together they had two very fine young men Damon (who preceded her in death) and Daniel. She loved them very much.

Clarretta enjoyed her nieces and nephews, anytime they had a problem they went to Aunt Ret. Who was always there on their side advocating for them.

She was a friend to many Natalie Moore (King) was one of them who proclaimed herself to be our Aunt. Frances Simpson who became the sister who understood her the most was her rock. She was always there and never let her down.

Clarretta was a fighter for what she believed in and she fought a good fight throughout her illness.

In the end she was the winner, she is now at peace.
